SONG.

She is not fair to outward view,
As many maidens be,
Her loveliness I never knew,
Until—she smiled on me,
O! then I saw her eye was bright,
A well of love—a spring of light!

But now her looks are coy and cold,
To mine they ne'er reply,
And yet I cease not to behold
The love light in her eye,
Her very frowns are fairer far
Than smiles of other maidens are.

A Strange Story.

I was stationed at Agra during the Cabu disaster in 1841, one of a mere handful of British troops, left in charge of the wives, sisters and daughters of the actors in that most unhappy expedition. And a weary, heart-breaking time it was. The Lieutenant Governor, who had prayed and besought the Calcutta authorities not to risk the adventure, had the worst forebodings for its fate; and although he did all an able, kindly and well mannered man could do to maintain the spirits of the circle, those who knew him could read too well what his fears were. Words could not describe—indeed it is painful for me even now to recall—the dreary wretchedness of that fatal month, during which no tidings came of the devoted army. Evening after evening saw the roads crowded by anxious women, sitting there for hours that they might hear the first news of those who were dear to them, and evening after evening saw them return in despair. And when at last the news came that the sole survivor had staggered, half alive, back to his countrymen, with the tidings of the great disaster, the wail which ascended from those heart-broken creatures I shall never while I live forget.

There had been a captain in one of the native regiments, an old acquaintance of mine, of the name of Donnelly—Jerry Donnelly, as he was called by every one. He was careful to explain to all his friends that his name was Jerome, and not Jeremiah, although why he so unduly preferred the saint to the prophet I never understood. Jerry Donnelly, however, he was, and as strange and eccentric a creature as ever breathed.

He was a very good looking fellow, and a first-rate officer, but a careless, rollicking, half insane mad-cap of a man, with an amazing flow of spirits, little education or culture, a great, almost miraculous, talent for languages, with a soft heart, and an easy temper. It was impossible to make him angry; and in all circumstances, however unpleasant, he maintained a placid serenity, which seemed to imply that he was on intimate terms with Fortune, and knew the very worst she could do.

Among the other tricks which the fickle goddess had played him, was that she had married him. Why he ever married as he did, no one could imagine. The lady was neither handsome, clever, nor rich. She was simply passable as to looks, with the liveliness of good health and youth—a quality not unapt to develop itself in vivacity of temper when those other attributes disappear. But, on same impulse, Jerry Donnelly had asked her the momentous question, and had been favorably answered.

A most uncomfortable couple they were. Jerry, from the very first, neglected her—not intentionally, I believe, but simply because for the moment he forgot her existence. It never seemed to him necessary to alter his former bachelor round in any respect; and as the lady had no notion of being neglected, she resented his indifference, and chalked out a line for herself. It may be easily supposed that the one was not adverse to brandy and water, or the other to gossip and flirtation. They never quarreled outwardly, but were hardly ever together.

So stood the domestic circle, if such it could be called, of Captain Donnelly, when he was ordered on General Elphinstone's expedition. His wife would fain have remained at Calcutta, but as all wives were going to Agra, she for very shame was obliged to go there also. On the rumors of disasters she was very indifferent—said she was sure Jerry would turn up at the most inconvenient time, and that if he was happy, she was. When, however, the tidings were confirmed, and it was certain that Jerry had perished with his comrades, a great change came over her. She shut herself up for months, saw no one, and went nowhere. And when at the end of nearly a year she began once more to look at the world, she was a grave, thoughtful, softened woman. She went up to Calcutta after that, and I never saw her again until I came home on a furlough in 1857. She was then living in a pretty place in Somersetshire and was known as Mrs. Courtnay, of Branley Hall.

I met her accidently, but she was very glad to see me, and explained to me what I had not heard, that when she arrived at Calcutta she found that poor Jerry had, four months before he left Agra, succeeded to this place of Branley Hall by the death of a distant relation. He had previously made a will leaving her all his worldly goods, then slender enough, so that in the end this fine estate had come to her, and a new name with it. She asked me to come down and see her, which I did, and learned more of her history.

Sorrow and prosperity greatly changed her for the better. Even her looks had improved, and she was pleasant, thoughtful, agreeable woman. She had remained four years in Calcutta before she returned but had at once assumed the name of Courtnay, which was a condition on which the bequest was made.

"You know, Colonel Hastings, I could not have lost the estate, for what would poor Jerry have said when he came back?"

I thought the woman's head must have been affected by her troubles, and said nothing.

"I see you think me deranged, but I knew he was alive all the time."

"Why, what could have led you to think so?"

"I saw him, Colonel Hastings. It was in our old bungalow at Calcutta, about two years after I had gone back. Late in the evening I heard a footstep outside which strangely affected me. I was lying half asleep, and starting up in a drowsy state, I heard a voice at the verandah, and, as I thought, inquiring of my stupid old native whether I lived there. The steps then turned away. I darted to the casement, and although the figure was clad in the extraordinary compound of European and Asiatic garments, I am sure it was Jerry. I darted down stairs and rushed out, but the man had disappeared. The servant said he was a bad fakir, who wished to get in the bungalow, but could or would tell me nothing of what he had said. But I am quite sure it was Jerry. So I am certain he will come back—but you remember he never was punctual," she added, with a faint smile.

I did not say to her that if Jerry was alive she must have heard of him in some other way; but I took leave of her, and shortly afterwards returned to India.

In 1853, I was appointed to an embassy to Nepaul, a very striking country, governed by a powerful warlike race. The first minister or vizier of the country met us, as is the Nepaulese fashion, outside the capital, and we had a very courteous and gratifying reception. He is a tall, handsome man, with a flowing black-beard, and conversed with me in Parisian, which I spoke fluently. After our interview, one of the attendants informed me that the vizier wished to see me alone, and he accordingly conducted me to an inner apartment. He ordered the attendants to withdraw, and then, in tones only too familiar, he exclaimed:

"Well Hastings, my boy, how go the Plungers?"

It was Jerry Donnelly, by all that was miraculous. I had observed him staring earnestly at me during the interview, and something in his gestures seemed not unfamiliar to me, but his flowing beard, solemn air, and Oriental dress, so much disguised him, that even when I heard the well remembered voice, I could scarcely realize his identify.

"But what on earth are you doing here, Jerry," said I, "and why don't you go home to your wife, like a Christian?"

"My wife! well that's the whole affair. You see, she's somebody's else's wife, so I'm better out of the way; it would be a pity that poor Sophy should commit bigamy."

"I assure you, you are entirely mistaken. Mrs. Donhelly has not married again."

"Hasn't she, though?" said he. "Don't I know better? Didn't I go to my own bungalow and find out that she married that starched fool Courtnay, when she knew I never could endure him?"

To his intense astonishment, I told him how the truth was, and in return he related to me his own adventures. He had been carried into Tartary, and there detained for three years, when he was allowed to accompany a caravan or body of pilgrims to Nepaul. Being by that time a proficient in the language he was taken notice of at court, but very strictly watched. He effected his escape, however, disguised as a fakir, and made his way to Calcutta, but finding, as he thought, his wife married again to a man in his old regiment, he returned, was taken into favor, and had risen to his present distinction.

"Well, I always was a blundering fool but I went home with a heart so soft to Sophy, and vowing that I never would vex her any more with my vagaries, that when I heard her called Mrs. Courtnay I was turned to stone, and did not care a rap what came of me, not even to be made a vizier, which, I assure you, Charlie, is no joke in its way."

"Well, at all events, you must come home now, and enjoy your good fortune."

"I am not sure about that," said he. "Recollect, she has grown accustomed to be mistress—I have grown accustomed to be vizier; she won't like to be contradicted, and it's a thing I never could bear, and what I never allowed on any account. Now, if I went home, she would not be mistress, and, as sure as fate, she would contradict me. Maybe it is better as it is."

Next morning he sent for me again.

"I have been thinking," he said, of all that strange story you told me. I am all changed since we parted. I hardly know myself to be the same man I used to be, and am not sure that I could treat Sophy well. But ask her to come out here, and then she can try. If she likes me in this outlandish place, I will go home with her; if we quarrel here, no one will be a bit the wiser, and I can continue to be dead."

"But," said I, "have you no incumbrances? Perhaps she might object to the details of your establishment."

"Not a bit," said Jerry; "I have none of your Easter prejudices; let her come, and she will find nobody to disturb her."

So she did come, and after living in Nepaul for two years, brought Jerry back in triumph to Branley Hall; and such is the true version of a tale which made some noise in the newspapers a few years ago,

An Exciting Adventure.

Father Maloney, a Catholic missionary, well known in all pars of Nevada, was visiting White Pine, recently, and was interviewed by a reporter who gained from him material for a long and interesting narrative. We publish one of his adventures, as well for its thrilling excitement as to give an idea of the fatigue and privations willingly undergone by the men of whom Father Maloney, is a worthy representative:

"Recently, said the Reverend Father, "I tried to cross into Ruby Valley, just sixty miles from here, to perform a baptism. There is no house between here and there, and I was never before over the same road. I thought I could make it by having an early start, as I had ridden on several occasions during last Summer seventy-five miles per day collecting funds for my church. Everything being ready, my horse was shod, etc, and I started out at eight o'clock on Monday morning. Everything 'went merry as a marriage bell' till I came to the Cherry Creek summit, where I encountered a heavy snow.

"Nothing discouraged I proceeded on my way feeling well as 'gay as a lark,' thinking that the snow would not be so deep as I proceeded. But instead of getting lighter the snow became deeper and deeper. Yet I would not return, and was still under the impression that I could make Ruby Valley. Besides, I felt half ashamed to return, as such action might denote cowardice, and cowardice I cannot tolerate in any one, much less in myself. The snow lasted all day, two feet deep and frozen over on top, which made it more difficult of travel, as it was not frozen strong enough to keep the horse up, which at every step went down knee-keep, and with much ado at times to extricate himself.

"At five o'clock in the evening I found myself ascending the summit between Long and Ruby Valleys, when I then and there got into about three feet of snow on the level. No road was then recognizable. Even the sagebrush was not to be seen. The whole region round was covered with the deep, deep snow, to a depth of three feet on the level, and in the drifts six to ten feet. My horse sunk and fell down under me. I jumped off and fell down alongside of him.

"Imagine my feelings in such a predicament! It was snowing at the time, and the wind was howling terrifically, such as it is wont to howl in Nevada. All this, coupled with the night coming on, and with the dreadful prospect of one foot of snow more being on the ground before morning, rendered my situation gloomy and desolate in the extreme.

"My horse, now leg-tired and weary, and myself ex-equo, I lost all hopes of escape. The danger, however, seemed to nerve me up, and in fact it almost made me mad; so I ploughed through the snow as best I could.

"My horse, which I still held by the reins, jumped up and followed after, and in half an hour we found ourselves on comparative terra firma, just fifty yards away, on a side hill, under a wide-spreading pine. We were still standing on two feet of snow. The wind was high and there was a drizzling sleet. I had matches in my pocket in abundance, well secured, and thought that it would be a good idea to light a fire.

"It is very easy to talk about lighting a fire, but it was not easy to do so in such a place and under such adverse circumstances. I was cold at the time. My hands and clothing were wet, and even the bark which I pulled off the pine seemed to be saturated with moisture, and it was impossible for me to start a fire. I tried and tried in vain. Match after match was ignited, and as often expired without any effect, and so I gave it up as a bad job.

"And now no fire, no possibility of proceeding any further, and not much prospect of returning, as I was then thirty-six miles from home! My horse was tired, and the average depth of snow over the thirty-six miles was two feet.

"I began to think seriously on what was to be done; yet there was no time for thinking or musing, as something had to be done, and that immediately. To remain till morning under that dismal tree was to almost certainly perish from cold, or if I survived the night, there were a thousand to one chances of slow but sure starvation, as six inches more of snow would keep me there forever.

"Such were my thoughts, when suddenly I heard a bark! It startled, me and I thought of St. Bernard's dogs in the mountain fastness of Switzerland, which saved the lives of many hundred snow-bound travellers in the Alps.

"My joy was great, and I exclaimed to myself, 'What can this be? Surely some friendly aid must be near at hand—some miner's or woodman's cabin must be close by, for I have heard that familiar bark of the favored domestic of the miner or woodman in these isolated and distant regions; or perhaps an Indian wigwam, which would afford me covering and shelter for the night.'

"But my cheering hopes were soon dissipated. In vain did I look around me for the smoke and wished-for cabin. No Indian wigwams or domestic dog greeted my view; but, in an instant, like a flash of lightning, I was surrounded by a pack of coyotes, six in number, which seemed to dispute with me the mastery of the place. But not with any motive or evil aforethought did I disturb their den. I had no love or longing for the spot, and would have left them alone if they had the grace of letting me alone.

"Approaching me and my horse, they simultaneously set up a yell, which it seemed to me penetrated the very skies. They growled, and howled, and snarled, and barked, until it seemed as if the heavens as well as the woods were swarming with infuriated, maddened, raging, hungry, demon-like coyotes. Cerberus at Pluto's gates could not open more ferocious. Their very eye-balls seemed to start from their sockets!

"'Good heavens!' I exclaimed, 'What am I to do now! It was bad enough before, but it is a thousand times worse now.' There is or can be no exaggeration, my dear interviewer.

Here the Reverend Father stopped, and seemed to be deeply moved at the recollection of his past precarious position, and when he recovered himself, continued:

"No, sir; if I had the graphic pen of Dickens or of Goldsmith, I could not truly paint or represent to you my position or feeling at the time. I do not believe I am a coward. I was never, even when young, considered a coward. Yet I felt in much the same strain of mind as the Latin poet Virgil experienced when he first got a view of the infernal regions, and when he exclaimed, 'I stood amazed; my hair stood on end, and my voice clung to my jaws.' And could you imagine it, sir? They did not devour me; and here I am, after all, in comparatively good strength and spirits after my Robinson Crusoe adventure.

"But to return to the wolves. I had no means of defence. I am now sixteen years 'roughing it,' as Mark Twain would say, and I never carried with me a pistol or revolver. I had never till then any need for one. The only weapon of defence I had at the time was my razor; I always carry my razor with me when making a journey of any length. This I secured in a hurry from my saddle-bags, and in a moment, as Tom Moore would say, 'my sword, such as it was, was fleshed to the hilt.' As the savage brutes were approaching me I made a rush at them with my razor, and, with all the gesticulations, shouts and grimaces I could put on, I thought to scare them by aping their own savagery. But to no purpose. They would not leave, nor would they approach at a nearer distance than twelve feet.

"At last I got accustomed to them. I knew they were hungry, and I was getting hungry myself. The poet says that a fellow feeling makes one wondours kind—at least, we did not molest one another from that on.

"My horse began to plough away once again at the snow. The coyotes followed me for about three miles, and after that I saw them no more.

"The night was dark as Erebus. Not a star appeared to throw one cheering ray upon me, and there was a light, drizzling sleet all night.

My horse's gait could not be faster than two miles an hour. The tracks made during the day were now closed by the drifting and falling snow, and everything—snow, darkness, hunger, wolves—made it the most dreary night I ever experienced. Yet I managed to get home the following morning at five o'clock, being just twenty-one hours in the saddle.

"I am now partially restored to my usual spirits and elasticity of mind, and expect ere long to be able again to compete with the boys in any feat of jumping, racing, or stone-throwing.

"Altogether, however, I look upon my narrow escape from death as a special protection of Divine Providence."

Sereneness Itself.

When three rival western railroads—say three running out of Chicago—get into a rumpus, cut rates and vow they will carry passengers and freight free, it is a lover's quarrel, and must soon end. Before the public has much benefit from the break the president of the road which is losing the most money invites the others to come and see him regarding a new style of cattle car. They make their appearance on time, light fresh cigars, settle down in easy chairs, and No. 1 remarks:

"Gentlemen, I am sorry to disappoint you, but the model of the new car referred to was accidentally broken last night."

"Oh, it's of no consequence," says No. 2."

"Not in the least," adds No. 3.

"Now that you are both, here and I happen to think of it, I may be pardoned for saying that my road can continue this cutting business for an indefinite period and still pay dividends."

"And so can mine."

"And so can mine."

"No doubt of it, gentlemen—not the least doubt. This afternoon I instructed my general passenger agent to cut rates one dollar lower."

"And so did I."

"And so did I."

"But while sitting here I have been led to inquire of myself why any of us should cut rates. There is traffic enough for us all at good rates."

"Yes, that's so."

"Yes, that's so."

"The public do not thank us for this cut. We might carry ten thousand passengers to St. Louis and not receive even a thank you."

"Not a thank."

"No, not a thank."

"Therefore, gentlemen, seeing that we are all here together, and seeing that a hard winter is approaching, I feel like signing an agreement to restore old rates."

"So do I."

"So do I."

"Very well. We will sign our names to this contract, and I will order George to bring the bottles of champagne and a lunch. Excuse my bland smile, gentlemen, but I feel good."

"And I was never more happy."

"And I am sereneness itself."

Rescued by a Horse.

Dr. Whitlock tells us a story of a narrow escape which his father-in-law, Murdock McKenzie, who lives in San Bernardino, Cal., recently had. Mr. McKenzie owns a young bull, a gentle enough animal ordinarily, and being in the pasture where the bull with other stock is confined, the worthy gentleman was taking him by the forelock, as it were, by pulling cockleburrs from the shaggy front of the bull, which submitted quietly to the operation. But just as soon as Mr. McKenzie turned to leave him, the animal made a headlong rush for him, knocking him senseless to the earth, where he lay for the time senseless, the bull endeavoring unsuccessfully to gore him as he lay prostrate. Now comes the strangest part of the incident. About one hundred yards distant from where Mr. McKenzie was engaged with the bull a favorite mare and colt were quietly feeding, but no sooner was the worthy gentleman struck by the vicious animal than both mare and colt were observed flying to his rescue with the speed of the wind, and charging upon the bull drove him away with hoof and teeth, thus enabling Mr. McKenzie who had recovered his senses in the mean time, to stagger to the fence and climb out of danger. His first recollection however, after being struck, was of the colt rubbing its nose upon his face, as much as to say: "I'm very sorry, but we hurried up as fast as we could."

Chemical Composition of Fruit.

In a late lecture, Prof. Caldwell, in talking on the chemical composition of fruit, mentioned some of the leading component parts, as pectose, and the free organic acids, including the malic and tartaric acids. To these acids the sour taste is due. More prominent than pectose is sugar, which in peaches may run as low as 1½ per cent., but exceeds 4 per cent. in sweet cherries, and sometimes runs as high as 15 per cent. in grapes. The albuoids exist in small quantities in fruits. Prof. C. stated that in order to get as much consequent nutriment as is contained in 9 ounces of fresh white of egg, one would have to eat, according to analysis, 110 ounces of cherries, 138 oz. of grapes, 194 of strawberries, 247 of gooseberries, 52 of apples, or 400 of pears. The agreeable quality of fruits depends on the proportion between acid, sugar, pectin, gum, cellulose, &c., and the aroma is due to the essential oils in minute proportions, whose quantity has never been determined; also on the relation between soluble and insoluble matters, to which the melting quality of some fruits is largely due. As the fruit ripens, the insoluble pectose is partly converted into pectin, and the fruit softens. The free acids generally diminishes, but in the apple it sometimes increases for a short time, and then diminishes till the fruit is ripe. On the other hand, the sugar usually increases steadily in the apple and pear, but in the grape makes a sudden leap as it approaches maturity. Till midsummer, the soluble and insoluble matters remain about equal, but in August the soluble matters begin to get the upper hand, and the ripe fruit becomes soft or melting. Great changes are made in comparatively few days in the ratio between the acids and sugar in the grape. Treatment has been found to influence these changes, and cultivation to improve the quality of fruit. Ripening, as well as weather, affects these changes, and acids are greatly reduced in quantity in pears and apples by the ripening process; but its effect on grapes has not been sufficiently investigated. It is worthy of careful examination in what way cultivation acts, and when well understood we may largely control flavor, or modify it to some extent. All these considerations open a wide field for future investigation. Prof. Caldwell remarked that the important fact had been determined that while the presence of potash is important, soda cannot take its place, although the two alkalies are so similar.

Recover Arms.

The following incident took place in Germany, recently during a performance of "Fidelio" at the Town Theatre of Mayence. Herr Mann, the leading baritone of the company, was about, in the character of the wicked Don Pizarro, to undergo the penalty of his evil deeds, the stage "business" requiring that he should be led away to confinement by two guards at a sign from the Minister of State. The brace of "supers" told off for this duty were private soldiers, belonging to an artillery regiment in garrison at Mayence—two sturdy Brandenburgers, drilled and disciplined to a nicety. As they took up the position assigned to them on either side of Pizarro, previous to marching him off the stage, the chorist intrusted with the part of "officer commanding escort" whispered to them:

Obedient to orders, they led Pizarro away to his dressing-room, where he rapidly exchanged his theatrical costume for private clothes, and, opening his door, was about to go home to his supper as usual, when, to his amazement, he found that his passage was barred by a couple of crossed halberds. Indignantly inquiring of the inflexible supers facing him with outstretched weapons "what they meant by interfering with his movements," he received the stolid reply that "they had strict orders to guard him closely as a State prisoner, and that he must not attempt to leave his room." Some time elapsed before the accidental arrival on the spot of the stage manager, whose authority they were induced with difficulty to recognize, resulted in these worty fellows "recovering arms," and in Mr. Mann's emancipation from restraint.

Summer Tours of 1881.

Already the notes of preparation for the Summer, are being heard on every side. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will, during the coming season, present greater facilities than ever for visitors to the many mountain and seaside resorts reached by it. All the advantages offered in previous seasons in the way of excursion tickets, fast and frequent trains, Palace coaches, and splendid passengers equipment will be continued and many improvements will be added which will insure to passengers still greater comforts and conveniences. With its leased and controlled lines, it reaches direct to all the popular watering places on the New Jersey coast; and all the famous mountain resorts of Pennsylvania, and no expense is spared to provide speed, safety, and luxurious accomodations for its patrons. Fast express trains will be run to Long Branch, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Ocean Beach, Spring Lake, Elberon, Deal Beach, Point Pleasant, Beach Haven, Long Beach, etc. A new branch now in course of construction will be finished to Sea Side Park, adding another delightful ocean resort to the already large number touched by the lines of this great corporation. On the West Jersey Railroad, (which is also controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company) which reaches to Atlantic City and Cape May; many improvements have been made, most prominent of which are frequent long sidings, giving all the advantages of a double track; the running of the trains by the system so successful on the Pennsylvania Railroad—and the placing of water tanks between the tracks enabling engines to take up water while in motion, thus allowing trains to run through without stoppages. A marked feature of all these lines is the thorough construction of the roadbed, the smooth running of the trains, and the entire freedom from dust being particularly noticeable. For travel to the mountains, there will be found the usual high standard of accomodation, and those preferring a jaunt in the country, a sojourn in the shady valleys, or on the mountain tops, will find every convenience for quick and enjoyable transit to Kane, Renovo, Delaware Water Gap, Altoona and Cresson.

Grace Darling.

On the morning of September 7, 1838, William Darling and his daughter were out earlier than usual. A terrible gale was blowing from the north, accompanied with rain, and both of them were on the alert at the dawn of day to make things secure about the lighthouse before the turn of the tide. At a quarter to five, when the daylight was still imperfect, Grace observed a steamer ashore on a craggy island half a mile distant, and she called the attention of her father to it. The sea was breaking so violently over the vessel, and the morning was so dark that more than two hours passed before they could be sure whether or not there were living persons on the vessel. But about seven they saw three or four human figures upon the rocks near the steamer, and they began at once to consider whether it was possible to save them.

Both thought they could get to the wreck, but not back again unless assisted by some of the rescued persons, as on their return there would be a strong tide to contend with. They concluded to take the risk, both being in perfect accord from the beginning to the end of the affair. Precisely what they did was related by the father in his official letter to the Lighthouse Board, now published for the first time.

"We agreed," he said, "that if we could get to them, some of them would be able to assist us back, without which we could not return; and, having no Idea of a Possibility of a Boat coming from North Sunderland, we amediately Launched our Boat, and was Enabled to gain the rock, where we found 8 men and 1 women, which I judged rather too many to take at once in the state of the Weather; therefore, took the Women and four Men to the Longstone; two of them returned with me, and succeeded in bringing the remainder, in all 9 persons, safely to the Longstone about nine o'clock."

That is the exact statement of the case by honest William Darling, who had no romance in his composition. His daughter Grace assisted him to row his boat about one mile, although in a straight line the distance was only a half mile, and helped him to rescue from a very painful situation one woman and four men. Having done this, she went into the light-house and devoted herself with her mother's aid, to the care and restoration of the persons saved. The storm was of such violence and duration that the shipwrecked persons had to remain with them two days and nights, as it was not possible to communicate with the mainland.

"The sufferings of the poor woman," Grace Darling wrote afterwards, "seemed to me to be rarely equalled, having struggled nearly two hours to save her dear children; they both died in her hands."

Grace Darling performed a highly creditable act; but neither she nor her father would have supposed they had done anything so very extraordinary if they had not been told so by others. Nor indeed can it be truly said that she saved lives. The tide was falling, leaving more and more of the rock free from water, and in a short time other assistance came.

The nearest village to the Farne Island is Bamborough, two or three miles distance. A gentleman living there, who probably knew the excellent character of the Darlings, sent an account of the affair to the Duke of Northumberland (then living at his seat near by) who was then the president of the Royal Humane Society. The duke called attention to the exploit, and the result was that the gold medal of the Humane Society was awarded to both father and daughter, accompanied by letters of extravagant and ill-expressed eulogium.

All this getting into the newspapers, the English people did not stop to scrutinize a tale which appealed so strongly to their love of courage and fidelity. Medals and other presents came pouring into the lighthouse. The Shipwreck Society of Newcastle and similar societies along that dangerous coast awarded their medals to father and daughter. The Duke of Northumberland had the good sense to send to William Darling a complete suit of water proof clothing, and the Duchess gave Mrs. Darling a silver tea pot, "to be constantly used by her, and afterwards to belong to Grace H. Darling." In the good old fashioned way, the Duchess sent the family four pounds of tea; to Mrs. Darling, a water-proof camlet cloak with hood; to Grace a cloak like her mother's, a silver-gilt watch, a gold seal, a prayer book, and a short Commentary on the Bible.

The English people are so constituted that they wish to do whatever is done by dukes and duchesses. Of course, there arose a fashion to give presents to Grace Darling. The Lighthouse Board sent her fifty pounds; Sir Francis and Miss Burdett Coutts, thirty pounds. The ladies of Edinburg collected for her more than eighty pounds; and money kept coming in until the sum amounted to seven hundred and fifty pounds.

Her celebrity became extremely inconvenient to them all. Managers of theatres and circuses tried to engage her as an attraction, one offering her ten pounds a week if she would appear for fifteen minutes every evening in a play founded upon the saving of life from ship wreck. Hundreds wrote for her autograph, and many of her autographs were sold at fairs for the benefit of sailors; and so many people asked her for a lock of her hair that she was obliged to make a stand against them, for fear of being reduced to absolute baldness. Her father wrote thus to one of the newspapers.

"Please to acquaint the public in your paper that within the last twelve days, I and my daughter have sat to no less than seven portrait painters."

He found this so inconvenient, and it wasted so much time, that he was obliged in this public way to refuse further sittings. He testifies that his daughter's head was not turned by all this attention, and that she continued to perform the duties of her situation with the same steadiness and cheerfulness as before. Four years after the wreck of the steamer, she caught a very bad cold, which proved to be the beginning of rapid consumption, and, after an illness of a few months, she died in October, 1842. She was buried in the village of Bamborough, where she had been born twenty-seven years before, and where a number of the presents showered upon her in 1838 and 1839, are still preserved by members of her family.

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman
Bellefonte, Pa., Feb 1.

THE dead-lock in the United States senate is likely to continue for some time. The responsibility for the failure of that body to transact the public business rests with the republicans. They insist on completing their bargain with Mahone before proceeding to consider the nominations sent to the senate by President Garfield. They are determined to deliver to Mr. Mahone the goods they promised him for his vote, that is, they have resolved to elect Mahone's man Riddleberger sergeant-at-arms, before they will proceed to transact the business for which they are called together by the president. It is to be hoped that every democratic senator will remain firm in his opposition to the completion of the republican bargain with Mahone and that not a single democratic vote will be cast in the senate to aid that prince of political tricksters, Roscoe Conkling, in an effort to prevent the confirmation of anti-Conkling appointments for the state of New York. Let it not be forgotten that it was Roscoe Conkling who devised and managed the corrupt bargain and sale by which the gallant Hancock was swindled out of his election.

STRUGGLES FOR OFFICE.—Our recollection of changes in the administration of the General Government goes back many years, but we remember no era when the appointments to office made such commotion in the dominant party as they do now. We have seen fierce conflicts between the two great parties, but now the strife is to see who shall be the greatest in the party that holds the power.

We may safely say that the Senate of the United States would consult its own dignity and the good name of the Government, by promptly acting upon nominations and getting over his petty controversy as quickly as possible.—New York Observer.

The Morey Chinese Letter.

The reader will remember that upon the appearance in print of what purported to be a letter of Mr. Ga field, involving the question of the employment of Chinese labor, just before the close of the late Presidential campaign, it was at once denounced as a forgery, and a prosecution was commenced against an alleged forger, with a great flourish of Radical trumpets. Since the election the prosecution has lagged. When inquired of why he did not prosecute the suit the Chairman of the Republican National Committee declared the reason to be that he had no money. But the money was promptly furnished by leading Democrats upon condition of honest effort to find out the real author of the letter. Now word comes that the prosecution of those at present under arrest is to be dismissed and no other instituted! The truth seems to be that the letter has been traced to the author, but that it is not pleasant to Republican officials to admit that James A. Garfield is that author! The action of the Republican leaders can not be accounted for in any other way.—Clinton Democrat.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., April 9, '81.

Everything indicates a great many changes in the Interior Department, Post Office, and the Attorney General's Office at an early day. In the Treasury also the removals will probably be numerous, but it is thought Secretary Windom will postpone action for some time. In the War and Navy departments the positions of importance are all filled by officers of the two branches of the service and the coming of a new administration makes no difference. A man once anchored in the State Department, and found efficient, is hardly ever disturbed except by death.

As an indication of what Secretary Kirkwood means to do or to recommend the President to do, action taken yesterday was significant. Congress having provided for eight $2000 clerks, and many others at high pay, in the Pension Office, it was generally believed the Secretary would promote some of the old clerks to those fat places. But he did not. Every one named is a new man, and the eight at $2000 rank any before in the office. This means reorganization, and doubtless, the retirement of the present Commissioner, Bentley.

The newspaper joke of the week is the proposition to make Senator David Davis Collector of New York, as a means of breaking the dead-lock in the Senate. As it is now said that neither the President nor Secretary Blaine use any influence upon Republican Senators in the matter of going to the consideration of executive business, I do not see how the dead-lock is to be broken. Except Mr. Frye and Mr. Conger the ablest Senators of that party have now declared that the Republicans must "stick," until George Gorham and Riddleberger are elected Secretary and Sergeant at Arms of the Senate. The Democrats are equally united in saying that these men shall not be elected, at least until the necessary business of the Session is over. It is not a "pretty quarrel," but a petty one, but these dignified Senators can hardly retreat after taking so determined a stand.

The President has again found it necessary to limit the time during which he will receive visitors, and to renew the notice that all applications for office must be filed in the proper departments. Personal applications will receive no attention. Many of those office-seekers who weeks ago attacked the White House in person are now carrying on the war from a distance by means of the United States mails. All letters received by the President of this kind, are at once sent to the Cabinet officer to whose department they relate. This is the only way a President can act with propriety. He cannot examine into the merits, or "claims" of one in a thousand of the applicants. Mr. Hayes had a happy way of promising anybody anything, and then, perhaps, having his clerks hunt up a citizen's name in the directory, but there are objections to that system.

CARROLL.

The rural newspapers of Canada complain of a general exodus of young men in the United States. Towns, in many cases, lose all their unmarried males, which makes it bad for the marriageable females and for the future general prosperity of the community.

The way out of any difficulty is not to worry; nor lose faith in God or man. Keep good natured, and push on in the line of conscientious duty. Soon the feet will touch hard bottom; and the opposite shore is not far away, or hard to reach.

"I'LL FIX YOU."

SUNBURY, PA., April 6.—This afternoon the citizens of this place were much shocked on hearing of the murder of Miss Lottie Hoover, aged seventeen years, by her brother George, whose age is but fourteen years. The tragedy happened at the house of the family about three miles from here on the road leading to Snydertown and Shamokin. Young Hoover came to dinner late and he and his sister had a quarrel over this. He sat down to the table and the difficulty continuing, he got up and remarking, "I'll fix you," passed into a back apartment. His mother, who was in the room at the time, fearing the boy meant harm got up and locked the door. The boy secured a shot gun and went out the back way and came around to the front door which he opened and deliberately shot his sister.

The room where the murder was committed was the out kitchen. It is a small two-story building facing the road and standing to the left and back of the main house. Lottie stood in the right hand corner as you enter, putting dishes in a side cupboard. George entered and without saying a word fired. Mrs. Hoover was seated near the door, while Alice was at the other side of the room at the sink washing dishes. The shot took effect in the neck, tearing and lacerating it. The dying girl never spoke. She was raised up by her sisters, but died in a few minutes.

The verdict of the jury was that the deceased, Lottie Hoover, came to her death by a shot deliberately fired from a shot gun by her brother, George Hoover. The scene at the house was heartrending in the extreme. Mrs. Hoover and the girls almost went wild with grief. George will be brought to town this evening by the officers of the law and lodged in jail.

A TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE IN AN ARCHIPELAGO.

An Entire Island Made Desolate by Its Effects—Three Thousand Persons Estimated to Have been Killed—Other Islands Shaken—The Scene of the Disaster.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 4.—A strong shock of earthquake at Scio, in the island of that name, yesterday destroyed many houses and seriously damaged all which were left standing. Later details say that many of the inhabitants were killed, and that the remainder are encamped in the fields. Many of the neighboring villages were destroyed. During the panic which ensued the Eastern Telegraph Company's office was pillaged. Shocks were also felt in the island of Syra and at Smyrna, but no damage is reported.

3,000 People Killed and Injured.

ATHENS, April 4.—A government dispatch has been received concerning the earthquake at Scio, which states that the effects were also felt at Tsesme, and that the number of persons who were killed and injured is estimated at three thousand. The schock was also felt at Carasto, Eubolo, and at Tinos. At Spra one house fell.

Sufferers by the Great Flood.

YANKTON, Dakota, April 8.—The waters of the great flood are subsiding rapidly and the Missouri is now running in its natural banks at this point. The bottom lands are still submerged. Altogether nearly one thousand people have been rescued from the farm houses in the in undated region. In this county alone many have not been reached in consequence of the impassable character of the ice walls surrounding them and it is feared they may perish from hunger and exposure before relief can reach them.

Almost every day we see accounts of women burnt to death or ruined for life by their clothes taking fire. The latest we noticed was that of Miss Bickhart of East Perkiomen township, Montgomery county, whose clothes took fire whilst trying to kindle a fire in a wood stove. Women should be very cautious about fire, as their clothes could not have well been better devised for getting up a sudden bonfire, than they have been as now made and worn.

Every owner of real estate ought to know that the laws of Pennsylvania provide that all deeds and conveyances made but not recorded within six months thereafter shall be adjudged fraudulent and void against any subsequent purchaser or mortgages for valuable consideration. The county records are the only proof of good title.

In Danville, Scranton and other places infected with contagious diseases it is put forth as a new discovery that cats communicate the diseases from house to house, carrying the infection in their fur, &c. The discovery is, however, by no means a new one. It has long been well known that a cat about a small-pox patient will communicate the disease by contact with another cat, and the same is believed to be true of diphtheria, measles, whooping cough, and the whole line of malarial diseases to some extent.

BROTHER KILLS BROTHER.

A Fatal Quarrel Between the Sons of a Mennonite Preacher in Berks.

READING, April 7—Christian Risser, a Mennonite preacher, residing near Brunnersville, a small village in this county, had occasion to be away from home for a few days this week, and during his absence his two sons, named Amos and Harry, were cutting potatoes for planting. While thus engaged a quarrel arose between them, which ended fatally. It appears that Amos was doing a certain amount of work which Henry dictated, whereupon a scuffle followed, during which Henry pulled out a large dirk-knife and in the excitement stabbed his brother in the abdomen. Amos fell, bleeding to the ground. Some neighbors who happened to pass by at the time came to his rescue and carried him to his home. Medical aid was at once summoned, but when the physician arrived Amos was so weak from the loss of blood that the doctors have no hopes of his recovery. Word was immediately sent to their father informing him of the occurrence. He is expected to arrive home to-night. The wound in the boys body is about two inches long, one inch deep, penetrating into the intestines. Amos Risser is about twenty one years of age. Henry is fourteen years. It is stated that the brothers have frequently quarreled together.

SIMPLICITY SIMPLIFIED!

Improvements September, 1878.

Notwithstanding the VICTOR has long been the peer of any Sewing Machine in the market—a fact supported by a host of volunteer witnesses—we now confidently claim for it greater simplicity, a wonderful reduction of friction and a rare combination of desirable qualities. Its shuttle is a beautiful specimen of mechanism, and takes rank with the highest achievements of inventive genius. Note.—We do not lease or consign Machines, therefore, have no old ones to patch up and re-varnish for our customers.

We Sell New Machines Every Time.

Liberal terms to the trade. Don't buy until you have seen the Editors and Proprietors.

Local Department.

—The ash piles on our street, have disappeared.

—The General Synod of the Lutheran Church will meet in Altona in June.

—The Union county farmers were busy plowing last week already.

—Goods well bought are half sold. Glass Setts, 4 pieces only 30 cts. at the "New Cash Store."

—The assassins of Czar Alexander have been tried and condemned to death.

—Job printing—in the best style and at lowest prices—at the Journal office. Bring in your orders.

—Lock Haven City Superintendent gets a salary of $900 a year. We would call that very good pay.

—A good second hand two horse wagon for sale cheap for cash or on short time. Inquire at the Journal office.

—Soon, ah, very soon, digging garden and cleaning house will be in order.

—Hon. Wm. Fearon, a prominent citizen of Lock Haven, died at his home on the 5th inst.

—A large lot of Frishmuth Original Smoking Tobacco just received, only 9 cts. per ¼ pd. Gents Hose 5 cts. per pair at the "New Cash Store."

—Will you send your children to school or do you prefer to have them running the streets?

—California was shaken by an earthquake last Monday. No serious damage was done.

—We claim with justifiable pride to be beyond competition. Good Calico 4½ cts. Dress Goods 6 cts. per yd. at the "New Cash Store."

—The Presbyterian congregation of Mifflinburg have engaged Mr. Enoch Miller to build their church. It is to be completed by Sept. 1st, next.

—Philadeldpia has 35,000 children who do not attend school. Such a state of negligence calls loudly for compulsory attendance.

—Several brand new sewing machines of the best standard makes, for sale at the Journal store, cheap for cash.

—Small pox rages fearfully in the Berks County Poor House, near Reading, and the citizens of that place are much alarmed over the matter.

FOR TENDER FEET.—The Journal store sells the celebrated Nelson Seamless Stocking, just the thing for tender feet. Call and see them.

—The Alexander brothers give notice that they have taken out letters testamentary on the estate of their father, Mr. Amos Alexander, deceased.

—A fine lot of Family Bibles, Pocket Bibles, Presentation Bibles—at the Journal Store. We furnish Bibles with names stamped on the outside in gilt letters if desired.

—Rev. C. F. Deininger, of New Berlin was here Monday and Tuesday on a visit—on business—to shake hands with friends, and so forth, and so weiter.

—Col. W. W. Brown, for many years a prominent newspaper man and politician of Centre county, but for several years past a resident of Kansas, died at Milesburg on Saturday the 2nd inst.

—We have one price—Cash or trade—Standard A White Sugar 10 cts. Light Brown 8cts. Best Syrup 12½ cts. Good 10 cts. per quart at the "New Cash Store."

—Mifflinburg has a girl that can bake nine immense loaves of bread, make a dress, attend a tea party, play the piano all evening, and drive a spirited horse a number of miles, all in one day and not feel a particle tired.

—Dr. John F. Harter, Dentist, has removed his office to the second floor of Tomlinson's grocery, where he will be happy to receive his personal and professional friends. tf

—There are fifty-five insurance companies in the state organized upon the "mutual and assessment plan" the majority of which were chartered the past year.

—Mr. H. H. Weiser is again safely at home after an absence of some weeks on a visit to relatives and friends in Ohio He is well pleased with his trip to the Buckeye state.

—We have opened up a large lot of New Goods, whose matchless prices speak for themselves. Men's Black Dress Hats 40 cts. Boys' 25 cts. at the "New Cash Store."

—W. B. Finney, proprietor of the Grape Hotel at Lancaster, Pa., on Sunday the 10th inst. kicked a guest named Hurd so severely that in a few days he died from the effects. Great indignation exists against Finney.

—Money sold at 25 per cent premium at the meeting of the B. & L. Association on Monday evening.

—Mrs. R. C. Deihl, of Hays city Kansas, is here on a visit to her sister, Miss Mary Motz. Mrs. D. speaks well of Kansas and is entirely content in her western home.

—B. F. Kister has removed his shop into the building next door to Foote's store. Frank is not only a good boot and shoe maker, but an excellent cobbler besides. Patronize him. He will do your work cheaply and well.

—At Lewin's Philadelphia Branch Store, Bellefonte, you may always feel sure that you get the full worth of your money.

—Prof. W. T. Meyor has started a class of pupils on organ music here. We wish both teacher and pupils a pleasant and profitable time. As a teacher of instrumental music Prof. Meyer has few equals anywhere.

—A great many small towns in the interior of the State are said to be flooded with counterfeit standard dollars. They are described as having the true ring, but are slightly thicker and are lighter than the genuine. It is almost impossible to detect them without the aid of a good balance.

—A correspondent of the Millersburg Herald remarks: "As the grave yards about town look so neglected, we propose that the policy holders of insurance, call a meeting and take measures for making them look more inviting. It might be an inducement for people to insure.

—Candidates are beginning to bestir themselves. All right gentlemen, only so that everything is done "decently and in order." It is perfectly proper that men asking the votes of their fellow citizens should mingle with the people, present themselves and their claims fairly and then leave the result with the people. Anything above or below this is simply wrong and demoralizing.

A BUSY PLACE.—No matter on what particular day of the week, or at what hour of the day you enter Lewin's Philadelphia Branch Clothing Store, Bellefonte, Pa., they are always busy selling goods. Nor is it any wonder that they should be, for they sell everything at rock bottom prices, and are uniformly clever and obliging to rich and poor alike. These are the strong points that insure such large success in business.

TRAGIC DEATH.—On Sunday morning March 27th, a shocking accident occurred in the family of Mr. Gladfelter, near Oriental, Juniata county, which resulted in the death of his daughter, Amanda, a highly esteemed girl of thirteen years of age. She was in the act of hanging up an overcoat, which droped to the floor by her side, the fall discharging two chambers of a revolver, both balls entering her chest several inches apart, causing death within an hour.

—If you want an extra fine article in the line of tooth powder—and every body should use such an article—Dr. John F. Harter is the man to supply you. We have tried it and know wherof we speak. tf

Average attendance during term, males—17, females—12, total—29. Miss C. V. Kreamer M. Clair Gephart, E. I. Musser, S. M. Campbell and M. Maggie Cantner, were unavoidably employed, which accounts for irregular attendance. H. S. & W. H. Alter belonged to North street school during two first months. Miss Mary Lose and Master Frank K. Lukenbach were the only pupils who were present every day. Thus ends another term marked by few visits from parents, for which I am very sorry.

D. L. ZERBY,
Teacher.

—When you feel a cough or bronchial affection creeping on the lungs, take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and cure it before it becomes incurable.

Various Causes—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce a gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil o color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous.

PIANOS & ORGANS!!

O. A. CHAMBERLIN of New York City has brought a large stock of Instruments into Union and Centre counties, which he is retailing at wholesale prices. He handles all first-class instruments. People need not be afraid to buy of him, even if he does not remain in their neighborhood till the next Centennial. Among the Organs that he handles you will find the ESTEY, MASON & HAMLIN, GEO. WOODS, TAYLOR & FARLEY, NEW ENGLAND and other first-class makes.

Address for the present,

—Elsewhere we publish the final report of Mr. Zerby, late teacher of our Grammar School. He took the pains all through the term to make out weekly reports which we published, giving our citizens a chance to examine the status of the school at all times without going to the trouble of visiting it, which but few seem inclined to do. These reports are rather dry reading but we think parents should feel enough interest in the welfare of their children to examine them.

Upon the whole it must be admitted that our schools are not what they should be, or might be. We have a competent and efficient board of directors, and feel satisfied that our teachers faithfully tried to do their best, but the labors of directors and teachers combined will effect but little unless properly supported by parents generally—and here is where the rub comes in. Parental authority and home training are entirely too lax in many instances. Any evening of the week our boys (and girls too) are permitted to be out, often making night hideous with their shouts and yells, or loafing in shops and stores just as late as it suits their convenience. But few families, there is reason to fear, require their children to be at home in good time and pursue their studies under their own supervision, encouragement and assistance. The quiet, gentle influences of the home circle are but little understood and practiced even less. The teacher of the public school is expected to do all, if there is any expectation or concern about the matter at all. He will fail to a great extent, no matter what are his qualifications. The work is too big—the burden too heavy. Unless we properly second the efforts of our teachers by a system of effective home training we might as well make up our minds to see our children grow up in ignorance and rudeness, if not worse. That's about the size of it.

The subject is a stale, but very practical one, and while it is unpleasant to write or speak about it, it may do us good to look the truth squarely in the face, once in a while. Parents reflect.

How to Build up a Town.

Don't buy anything at home, if you can help it. Get what you must have somewhere else—in the city, where you can buy cheaper. Your own merchants want too much profit. Don't have anything made at home. Your own mechanics are but bunglers and high priced ones at that. If you need a wagon, a buggy, a carpet, a suit of furniture, a sett of harness, or anything, send for it—get it anywhere else than at home. Do all of your own work as much as possible. Don't give any work to laboring men, for that would only be fooling away your money. And if perchance you must hire a man to dig garden, chop wood or whitewash fences, beat him down to the lowest possible price—and make him wait awhile for his pay. Don't take your own local paper. You can get the New York Sockdoleger—a larger and much better paper for the same money. Don't try to get up a good school in your own town—it's no use, you will fail. Send your children away from home for their education. Your own schools are poorly conducted, the teachers don't understand their business. Discourage every public enterprise that others get up for the good of the community. Don't subscribe anything, don't give for building churches or supporting preachers Can not the Lord who is allmighty, take care of his own? If any of your neighbors—especially if he be poor, buys or builds a home, find out if you can where he gets the means, or who is his backing. If you don't succeed to gather up the desired information, you can at least express your amazement. "How the——ne can go on so."

By following these rules closely, not to say anything of others that might be named, you will succeed admirably to build up your town, increase general prosperity, improve the tone of society, and so forth—over the left.

News Miscellany.

"Old Abe," the historic eagle carried by the Eighth Wisconsin Infantry through the war, and which has been kept at the Wisconsin capitol since, is dead.

Harry English, formerly of Bradford, who was tried for the murder of a constable but acquitted, and afterwards convicted of forgery at the January term of the Elk county court, was sentenced last Wednesday to four years imprisonment in the penitentiary at Allegheny City and to pay a fine of $500.

WORTH TRYING.

The Scientific American suggests to farmers the following method of getting rid of stumps upon their farms: "In the autumn or early winter bore a hole one or two inches in diameter, according to the girth of the stump, and about eighteen inches deep. Put into it one or two ounces of saltpetre, fill the hole with water and plug it close. In the ensuing spring take out the plug and pour in about a gill of kerosene oil and ignite it. The stump will smoulder away, without blazing, to the very extremity of the roots, leaving nothing but the ashes."

THE WESTERN FLOODS.

Five Hundred Homeless People.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., April 10.—The Missouri river was still higher here yesterday than on the previous night. Fully five hundred persons from the lowlands are temporarily homeless. The flood is the most extensive ever experienced here. Great damage is also being done on the Omaha side, the smelting works being greatly damaged. Communication between the two cities is temporarily suspended. The river is now twenty-two feet above low-water mark.

Poisoning a Man for Insurance Money.

YORK Pa., April 5.—Peter Trimmer, an aged resident of Manchester borough, upon whom is carried a heavy amount of speculative insurance, has narrowly escaped being the victim to a deep-laid conspiracy aiming at his life A quantity of whisky, heavily dosed with a slow poison, was placed in a position where he would most likely find it, and being somewhat addicted to the use of spirits it was thought he would drink it without ascertaining its poisonous contents. Fortunately it was discovered by another person, and the bottle which bore the label "whisky" aroused suspicion and the contents were handed to a physician for examination, who ascertained it contained poison. No idea or clue to the guilty parties has been obtained, but suspicion places the matter upon some of the holders of his numerous insurance policies, as he has outlived their anticipations and is now a most expensive burden. An investigation will be made.

It is estimated by the Milton Argus that over two hundred and fifty new buildings will be erected in that place next summer.

HIGHEST HONORS
AT THE
Centennial World's Fair, 1876!
THE SHONINGER ORGANS
PRONOUNCED UNANIMOUSLY AS THE BEST INSTRUMENTS.

"The B. SHONINGER ORGAN CO.'S exhibit as the best Instruments at a price rendering them possible to a large class of purchasers, having a combination of Reeds and Bells, producing novel and pleasing effects, containing many desirable improvements, will stand longer in dry or damp climate, less liable to get out of order, all the boards being made three-ply, put together so it is impossible for them to either shrink, swell or split." THIS ONLY ORGANS AWARDED THIS RANK.

This Medal and Award was granted after the most severe competition of the best makers, before one of the most competent juries ever assembled.

New Styles and prices just issued, which are in accordance with our rule, the BEST ORGAN for the least money.

We are prepared to appoint a few new Agents.

TO ADVERTISERS.
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S
SELECT LIST OF LOCAL NEWSPAPERS.
An advertiser who spends upwards of $1,000 a year, and who invested less than $250 of it in this List, writes: "Your Select Local List paid me better last year THAN ALL THE OTHER ADVERTISING I DID."
IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST
IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST.
IT IS AN HONEST LIST.
The catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper.
The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for single States ranges from $3 to $30. The price for one inch one month in the entire list is $625. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $2,980.14. The list includes 852 newspapers of which 17 are issued DAILY and 765 WEEKLY. They are located in 784 different cities and towns, of which 36 are State Capitals, 363 places of over 5,000 population, and 408 County Seats. For copy of List and other information address GEO. P. AGRICULTURE.

EVERY one who has grown asparagus either for home use or for market must have been more or less annoyed by finding a portion of the shoots curling over upon one side, and making very little growth, and that little hard and woody, and utterly worthless for culinary purposes. We have heard the question asked repeatedly, what makes the shoots curl? but very few have been able or willing to answer. The subject has often been brought up in agricultural conventions, without bringing out much information that has proved satisfactory to the inexperienced. Now, from our own experience and observation, as well as from conversing with a few of the most successful growers of this vegetable, we are led to conclude that crooked and curled asparagus shoots are always produced in consequence of some injury to the shoot while it is pushing up through the soil. It may be caused by raking the bed, or by digging it over with forks, as is often practiced in the spring of the year. And it may be done by carelessness while cutting the shoots. The least cut, bruise or scratch made up on the side of a shoot stops growth on that side. There is an effort to heal the wound, but so far as the value of the shoot is concerned, it is always a failure. If any one doubts the truth, of this statement, he can easily satisfy himself by simply causing an injury to a growing shoot before it gets above the surface. Much care should be used both in digging and raking over asparagus beds in spring, and also when cutting for the table. There is nothing coming from the garden in May that is a greater luxury to those who like it, than asparagus, and it is well to know how best to handle it.

TO PREVENT SHEEP GETTING OVER STONE WALLS.—A great many men who have farms excellently adapted for keeping sheep, are deterred from doing so on account of their farms being fenced with stone walls, and sheep will soon learn to get over any ordinary stone fence. The cheapest and at the same time the most effectual device for preventing this is one gotten up by a neighbor of time. It consists in setting posts against the wall, boring a hole through these about 16 inches above the top of the wall and running a No. 11 wire through the hole. This should be stretched very tight. If the first is well fastened, this may be done with a crowbar for a long way, using the bar for a lever. The posts need not to be nearer to each other than four to six rods, if the top of the wall is straight; if it is not, they should be somewhat nearer. This he had found to be perfectly satisfactory, so much so that a neighbor's big dog tried to get over it to the sheep once or twice and went away perfectly disgusted. A much nearer and more durable plan, costing but little more would be to insert small iron posts into the cap stones at proper distances and bend the post so that the wire will hang directly over the face of the wall on the side on which the sheep run. Either of these methods costs so little that the profits of a small flock of sheep will more than pay the expense in one season.

IF a farmer wants good horses of his own raising, he must begin at the beginning, and not start—as too many do—with an old, wind broken mare that is blind in one eye and lame in two legs, simply because she can be bought for a little money. For breeding purposes, in nine cases out of ten, such an animal is dear at any price. A good thoroughbred stallion would get from such a mare a colt far better than the dam, but her weaknessess and constitutional traits will sooner or later become apparent in the off-spring. "Like begets like," is a well established law, and a superior animal cannot come from one decidedly inferior. Only from sound and vigorous mares can we hope for a race of healthy horses. Let all raisers of horses start in the right direction by breeding from the best on both sides.

TAR FOR WARTS.—A farmer writing to an exchange, says: "I had a mare some years ago that had a large wart on her side, where the harness rubbed and kept it sore. To prevent this I put on a good daub of tar, and in a few weeks the wart was killed and disappeared. I have frequently tried it since on cattle and horses, and seldom had an occasion to use a second application. The remedy is simple and effectual."

HINTS.—It is said that if sod land is ploughed just before the corn is planted, the worms will feed upon the sod and not injure the corn. White flowers are generally more fragrant than colored ones. You may enlarge your pinks by watering them with a weak solution of nitre.

An ingenious Frenchman has devised a game for facilitating the study of geography by children. It consists of a large planisphere map of the globe, accompained by numerous objects representing animals, plants, flags, costumes, towns and landscapes. These objects, of painted cardboard, stand upright when the small inscription accompaning them is folded back; and each one bears, moreover, a number corresponding to one on the map. Placing each in its proper position, the child quickly becomes familiar with subject illustrated; if it be a plant, he knows the place which produces it, and its use; is a town, he knows the population, position, etc. The new game has received the approval of the Paris Society of Geography.

To make caoutchouc indifferent to the action of oils and fats, without impairing the other properties of vulcanized rubber, the following method is employed at the works of C. Schwanitz, Jr., at Berlin. The caoutchouc is worked, by heated rollers, together with a mixture of 6 lbs. of prepared chalk, 1 lb. of glycerine of 1 23 sp. gr., 1½ oz. of litharge, and 3 1 5 oz. of sulphur. For vulcanizing, the mass, or the article formed thereof, is placed in a bath of glycerine, and exposed to a steam pressure of from two to three atmospheres.

THEATRE-GOERS, club-visitors, late supper-takers and patrons of the horse railroad owl-trains, should all certainly have a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup convenient. Gentlemen you will need it.

DOMESTIC.

REMEDY FOR LOCKJAW.—Let any one who has an attack of lock-jaw take a small quantity of turpentine, warm it and pour it on the wound, no matter where the wound is, and relief will follow in less than a minute. Nothing better can be applied to a severe cut or bruise than cold turpentine; it will give certain relief almost instantly. Turpentine is also a sovereign remedy for croup. Saturate a piece of flannel on the throat and chest, and in every severe case three or four drops on a lump of sugar may be taken inwardly. Every family should have a bottle on hand.

LIP-SALVE.—An elegant lip salve may be made in the following simple manner: Put half a pound of fresh lard into a pan, with an ounce and a half of white wax; set on a slow fire till it is melted; then take a small tin dish, fill it with water, and add a few chips of alkanet root; let the water boil till it becomes of a beautiful red color; strain some of it, and mix it with the other ingredients according as may be desired; scent it with some agreeable and favorite extract, and then pour into small white jars or boxes.

[Detroit Post and Tribune.]

I have a little girl, said Mr. Henry Dole of this city, in a conversation, who was troubled with a severe lameness in her legs, pronounced by some Erysipelas, by others Rheumatism. I had tried several remedies without effect, when I was induced to apply St. Jacob's Oil and I am happy to say that the use of but one bottle cured her, and she is now able to go to school again.

BATH BUNS.—Take one pound of flour to one-third of it add in a hole in the centre a tablespoonful of yeast and a teacupful of warm milk, let it stand for an hour in a warm place to rise. When risen, add six ounces of butter and four eggs, with the rest of the flour, six ounces of sugar, and a little pounded cinnamon to taste; mix all well together, cover it over and let it rise again. Shape it into buns, leaving it as rough as possible; sift some sugar and a few comfits on the top, sprinkle with a little water, and bake in a moderate oven on well-buttered tins.

POTTED CHICKEN.—This is an agreeable relish, and makee a pleasant luncheon when traveling. Take a roast fowl and carve off all the meat. Take two slices of cold ham and chop it with chicken; add to this one quarter pound of the best butter; add salt and pepper to taste; now pound this all together to a paste; put the mixture in a jam pot; cover closely. It will keep in a cool place ten days or long enough for any moderate journey.

POTATO SALAD (German Style).—Broil twelve good-sized potatoes; when cold slice them and cut in small pieces; to these add one onion, chopped fine, and half of a bunch of celery, cut in small pieces; season with salt and pepper to taste; then heat one half cupful of vinegar with a tablespoonful of butter added, or three tablespoonfuls of olive oil; pour this over the salad, and it is then ready for use.

Carry the News.

Mr. John Etzensperger, manufacturing Jeweler of North Attleboro', Mass., lately communicated to us the following: I suffered so much with pains in my arm, that at times I was completely helpless. I used that incomparable remedy St. Jacob's Oil and was completely cured as if by magic.

FOR EARACHE.—Take a bit of cotton spread it flatly, sprinkle with black pepper, do it up in a wad, dip in sweet oil and insert in the ear. This is a happy and almost instantaneous relief. The same remedy, applied to the cavity of an aching tooth, gives immediate relief.

ANOTHER warning to persons who use ice water. A man was frozen to death by its use, recently. He fell into a river.

VEGETINE

For Cancers and Cancerous Humors.

THE DOCTOR'S CERTIFICATE. READ IT.

ASHLEY, Washington Co., Ill., Jan. 14, 1878.
MR H. R STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—This is to certify that I had been suffering from a Rose Cancer on my right breast, which grew very rapidly, and all my friends had given me up to die, when I heard of your medicine, Vegetine, recommended for Cancer and Cancerous Humors. I commenced to take it, and soon found myself beginning to feel better; my health and spirits both felt the benign influence which it exerted, and in a few months from the time I commenced to use the Vegetine, the Cancer came out almost bodily.

CARRIE DEFORREST.

I certify that I am personally acquainted with Mrs. DeForrest, and considder her one of our very best women. Dr. S. H. FLOWERS.

ALL DISEASES OF THE BLORD.—If Vegetine will relieve pain, cleanse, purify and cure such diseases, restoring the patient to perfect health after trying different physicians, many remedies, suffering for years, is it not conclusive proof, if you are a sufferer, you can be cured? Why is this medicine performing such great cures? It works in the blood, in the circulating fluid. It can truly be called the Great Blood Purifier. The great source of disease originates in the blood; and no medicine that does not act directly upon it, can purify and renovate, has any just claim upon public attention.

VEGETINE.

I Regard it as a Valuable

FAMILY MEDICINE.

January 1, 1878.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—I take pleasure in saying that I have used the Vegetine in my family with good results, and I have known of several cases of remarkable cure effected by it. I regard it as a valuable family medicine.

Truly yours, REV. WM. MCDONALD.

Dr. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP

To All Our Friends.

Having had numberless inquiries for advertising cards from ladies in all parts of the country who are interested in the prevailing fashion of making "Card Collections," we are having printed for them a set of seven beautiful cards, each in six colors and on a gold background, in the very highest degree of art, illustrating Shakspeare's "Seven Ages of Man." We have spared no expense in these cards—they are simply little art gems. Our only aim has been to publish the finest cards yet shown. Applications for them have come in so rapidly that nearly the whole edition is engaged before the receipt by us of the cards from the artist. We have therefore been obliged to adopt the following plan for the distribution of the remainder: No more of the gilt Shakspeare cards, seven in the series, will be sent excepting upon the receipt of a statement from a grocer that the person applying for the cards has bought of him on that day at least seven bars of Dobbins' Electric Soap, with price paid for same. All applying in this manner will receive the full set of seven cards gratis by mail. This will insure us that our friends and patrons get their share of these beautiful designs, although it in no manner repays us for the cost of the cards. Your grocer has the soap or will get it, and the purchase by you of seven bars of it at one time will secure for you gratis seven really beautiful cards. The soap improves with age, and is an article of necessity in your house every week. Therefore you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one that you must have anyway. Please send us your application at once, and tell your lady friends making "Card Collections," to do the same. Grocers do not have the cards to deliver. Buy the soap of them, send us their bill, and we will mail you the cards free. Yours respectfully, I. L. CRAGIN & CO., 116 South 4th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

P. S.—Ladies not wishing to buy soap can get the cards by remitting cost price, 25 cents.

are pronounced by the medical profession "The bane of society" but the Bible says "To him who is afflicted pity should be shown" and Dr. Silsbee, the discoverer of "Anakesis" the only infallible pile cure known to medical art, deserves a monument at the hands of afflicted millions as a benefactor of the human race. If as Jean Paul Richter says—"Happiness is the absence of pain," what shall be said of a remedy that will relieve instantly such pain as those endure who suffer from piles and of how much happiness must "Anakesis" be the author. 500,000 of the millions afflicted with piles gladly testify to its healing virtues. Doctors of all schools prescribe it and in 20 years none have used it without benefit. Combining the virtues of a poultice, an instrument and medicine, easy of application, safe and useful in all cases, it relieves pain at once, holds up the tumors and ultimately cures the worst cases of piles and what is equally worth knowing, by following the Doctors printed instructions as to diet, habits etc., keeps them cured. Samples of "Anakesis" are sent free to all sufferers on application to P. Neustaedter & Co., Box 3946 New York. Sold by druggists everywhere. Price $1.00 per box.

HUMOROUS.

A DAIRYMAN in Floyd county, Indiana, having settled it to his own satisfaction that a certain widow whom he was supplying with milk would make him an excellent wife, rang his bell in front of her house, and when she came out with her pan, addressed her as follows: "I want a wife. I have a good dairy of fifteen cows. We rise at 3 o'clock in the morning; we have rye coffee for breakfast, with skimmed milk, but no sugar for seasoning. You need not get up so early, and you may have bean soup once a week, we have boiled cabbage once a week and kraut once a week. We occasionally have some bacon. But we do not use butte, for it is too expensive, and use lard in its place. We work hard and live saving. I have told you all and would like to marry you." The widow thanked him, said she preferred her own table and told him he had better propose to his next customor.

A Wise Deacon.

"Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors visiting us so often."

"Bro. Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time; kept my family well and saved the doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us well and able to work all the time. I'll warrant it has cost you and the neighbors one to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time."

"Deacon, I'll use your medicine hereafter."

Correcting himself hastily, he beg an again: "I beg pardon; I mean a yard of flannel to match a marroon-colored baby—Here" (producing a bit of flannel from his vest pocket) "I want a yard of that."

RUSKS.—With one and a-half pints new milk, three tablespoonfuls of fresh yeast, stir to a stiff batter with flour at night. In the morning, take half a pound of white sugar, rolled and sifted; half a pound of butter, two eggs, beaten very light; two tablespoonfuls of rose-water, or one-half of a nutmeg grated, and with the sponge stirred the previous night knead well in a soft dough. Make out in rolls, grease each one with butter or lard (I use lard,) and place into a greased pan to rise; when light bake as loaf bread slowly and carefully.

"Don't know half their Value."

I would have lost both of them one night if I had not given them Hop Bitters. They did them so much good I continued their use until they were cured. That is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters and do not recommend them high enough."—B., Rochester, N. Y. See other column.—American Rural Home.

We will send The Literary Guest (a mammoth illustrated Family Story Paper) on trial three months for only 15 cts. (or five 3c. postage stamps) and to each subscriber, we will give free one pair of elegant Oil Pictures, size 12x16 inches. We make this offer simply in order to introduce our Paper and Elegant Oil Premiums in new localities, well knowing where they are once seen hundreds more will be wanted. We shall offer as above the celebrated companion Pictures entitled, "The East," representing a scene in the White Mountains, and "The West," representing a scene in Wyoming Territory. They are the most beautiful and artistic Genuine Oil Pictures in this country, and in their perfection are very valuable works of art.

HOW WE CAN GIVE THEM AWAY.

These pictures were made as premiums to be given away with The Aldine, the finest art journal ever published, for $5 per year. As every one knows, The Aldine failed; it was through our agent that the whole immense edition of these chromos was secured at a bankrupt sale. It is only for this reason that we could offer these pictures as premiums with our paper. Every one who remembers The Aldine will know what would be the value of any picture which such a celebrated art journal would offer to its subscribers; and we confidently expect, offering these premiums, which were designed for a six dollar paper, with THE GUEST (three months for 15 cents), to secure at least 20,000 subscribers within the next two months.
